Philadelphia Believes Donner and Replogle Must Reach Understanding First.

It was a simitted in weil informed banking circles to-day that such a condition hinges upon the ability of Williams H. Donner, long the dominant factor in Cambria Steel, and J. Leonard Replogle, the new factor, to get together. If Donner and Replogle and the interests back of them are able to reach an understanding, the programme long cherished by Donner probably will be carried out. This calls for a new holding company to be formed to take over the Pennsylvania Steel Company. The negotiations and conferences which have been held to date in connection with these two companies have not reached a conclusion, and the willingness of the Donner and Replogle interests to pull in the same the Cambria Steel Company (Emanuel M. Should a split come, it is reported that Donner may retire from the active management of Cambria Steel and devote all his attention to the development of Pennsylvania Steel, in which he holds a 38 per cent interest. He is negotiating for the remaining 38 per cent interest held jointly by the Pennsylvania Company and the Reading. Should such a contingency arise, it is said that Replogle would then become the active head of Cambria Steel, and that the two executives, who at one of 164th st. and St. Nicholas av.
